Article 5

The Jury will consist of a president, a secretary (who is part of the discussion but has no vote) and six additional members assigned by the Foundation for Justice and Foundation Bancaja. In their first meeting, the secretary will declare the composition of the Jury, proceeding with the appointment of the president, who will work in conjunction with the recipient the Foundation for Justice – Bancaja Foundation Award from the previous year. It is the president's task to organize and direct the deliberations and the voting procedure. It is the secretary's task to interpret the present regulations and take minutes of the meetings. The voting system favours the vote of the majority. In order to meet that objective, the vote should always be expressed in a positive manner.

They should communicate their voluntary commitment to the president of the Foundation for Justice in writing and within the time period of the presentation of candidacies.

Article 7

The meeting of the Jury shall take place within fifteen days after the candidates presentation deadline. The vote, which can be delegated, must be stated by each member of the Jury in the moment of voting. The award will be given to the candidate that obtains at least two-thirds of the Jury's vote. The Jury's decision is irreversible.

Article 8

The Award can neither be given as a posthumous title nor in favour of people who have been members of the jury in the three previous years and try to claim the award for themselves or the organizations and institutions they work for. In order to win the award as a group or institution it will be absolutely necessary to clearly complete the merits corresponding with the candidacies.
